More details here: www.x-planes.com/d3/pilot-guide/ I don't get why people get too excited about it. What would you like to change and have it be better? The lack of parking at TCA - we need a program for that! You have tons of parking at AFI. Everything from the repaint/etc., from my perspective, was more cosmetic than anything. The old planes were ugly and cheap-looking, and they didn't really shine all that much more than the new ones. The paint job on the new ones is quite nice, but I have to say I prefer the old-style/colors, like the old military cargo planes. I'd love for a program to be made where we could get the old white/gray/blue planes back. That would have really made a big difference. The lack of parking at TCA - we need a program for that! I have to go to terminal and board the plane and go to the gate. Then taxi to the runway and go to the gate. I have a mile to taxi, or more when it is a really windy day, because of the runway length. That time is not just there for access but also parking on the side of the runway. You are right and I like your idea to have all the cars come to the terminal to get on the plane. However, there needs to be a way to get on the plane at the gate and not have to go to the terminal. We need to plan ahead. Have I been asleep for the last 10 years? I didn't even know it was possible to download an x-plane update with X/Y/Z axis, let alone 0.0.14. Yes, I am such an idiot! I had been running the 0.0.13 with zero problems, so I expected the same issue. The last release contained a minor bug in how gearbox switching was handled by the X/Y axis. This has now been fixed (and some features added) and we are currently testing this release. The last release contained a minor bug in how gearbox switching was handled by the X/Y axis.
