Bcl-2 family members play key roles in the regulation of cell death. Bim, one of the pro-apoptotic Bcl-2 family proteins, is induced upon activation of death signaling pathways. Bax, the other member of the Bcl-2 family, is also known to be involved in cell death regulation, although the role of Bax has remained unclear. We attempted to detect Bim and Bax in vivo by using the RNA-fragment recruitment assay. In this assay, RNA fragments containing a single-stranded T7 promoter sequence are obtained from the transcript of a specific mRNA. These RNA fragments then function as a substrate for T7 polymerase, which can incorporate a biotin tag onto the RNA. Thus, the biotinylated RNA can be captured by streptavidin beads. The purified biotinylated RNA was incubated with tissue extracts. The binding target of the biotinylated RNA was eluted by heating and detected by immunob

I'm using a Heroku account to deploy my app and I'm wondering if there's a way to configure App Engine to use the same keys I'm using in Heroku. Is it possible? A: This article has an information on how to set up app engine with Heroku keys (using Heroku config and bash scripts). A: I ran into the same problem and decided to run a script when I pushed. I simply created a script in my app's root folder called "configure_app_engine.sh". Here is an example of how I would like it to run: `AppName_UserName:AppName_YourPassword` Just modify it however you like. I went with the `AppName_UserName` part as it is the username you use to log into your app with heroku and it makes it easier. To setup the script, I simply ran the following on my local computer: `echo "AppName_UserName:AppName_YourPassword" | heroku config:set` And that should do it. 2d92ce491b
