Q: Use a different UIViewController for specific views inside of a UITableViewController I have a UITableViewController with a custom UITableViewCell that has a specific view inside of it. In my nib file, I created a UIViewController with the same custom UITableViewCell class, but with the specific view inside. I created this view controller in the same nib as the UITableViewController (by dragging the custom UITableViewCell into the controller). However, in my implementation of the UITableViewController class, I am trying to use [self presentViewController:viewController animated:YES completion:nil]; to present the view controller. Here's the code from my UITableViewController class:

@interface SchedulesViewController () @end
@implementation SchedulesViewController
-(void)viewDidLoad { [super viewDidLoad];
_picker = [[Picker alloc] initWithStyle:UITableViewStyleGrouped];
_picker.delegate = self;
NSMutableArray *addClasses = [NSMutableArray array];
[addClasses addObject:@"HIGH SCHOOL"];
[addClasses addObject:@"INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL"];
[addClasses
