A: You'll need to learn the basics of regexp usage first. The following will find the pattern, and then replace it with nothing: @echo off (echo "Hello, isa" | findstr /i "ew/" >nul)&&move /y "C:\Program Files (x86)\Microsoft Forefront TMG 2010\Content\temp\BandwidthSplitter*.dll" "C:\Program Files (x86)\Microsoft Forefront TMG 2010\Content\splitter\ISABandwidthSplitter\dlls\dll\BandwidthSplitter*.dll" To find each, replace /i with /m and remove the /y from the move command: @echo off (echo "Hello, isa" | findstr /m /i "ew/" >nul)&&move /m "C:\Program Files (x86)\Microsoft Forefront TMG 2010\Content\temp\BandwidthSplitter*.dll" "C:\Program Files (x86)\Microsoft Forefront TMG 2010\Content\splitter\ISABandwidthSplitter\dlls\dll\BandwidthSplitter*.dll" Once you've got it working, try to repeat it to replace a range of characters. Alaska House of Representatives The Alaska House of Representatives is the lower house of the Alaska State Legislature. It has 63 members. House members are elected in even-numbered districts in districts of approximately equal population. The terms of the members are four years. A new House is elected every two years. The House is one of the two houses of the Alaska State Legislature, along with the Alaska Senate. History The House first convened in 1974, having been established by the Alaska Constitution. Members are elected in the general election in even-numbered districts of approximately equal population, with terms lasting four years. In 1982, voters passed a constitutional amendment to permit legislation to be voted on at the same time as the state's existing Constitution, providing for the approval of a new Constitution. The first bill under this new rule was a proposed revision of the Alaska Constitution. The Alaska Constitution Revision Commission, established by the legislature in 1985, first held hearings in 1985 and proposed a new Constitution in 1986. The Commission's report, the "First Report", was adopted on September 17, 1986. The first amendment to the new Constitution

National Adoption Month I'm sure no one is shocked to find out that I am a huge, HUGE, HUGE fan of adoption. And I bet that pretty much most of the people in this forum are too. I don't know if you realize that but it is true. (Read the responses to my "Adoption Month Poll" if you don't believe me.) But there is something that most of us are going to have to remember if we are going to continue to do adoption work: Adoption should not be discouraged Every year, we try to "get through" the month of November as fast as we can. This year, though, I decided to give our family a break. Our adoption experience has taught us a lot and we are in a much better position to help others that have done what we did and need a bit of help, so I decided to take a break from doing adoption-related stuff. I really do think that if we don't let ourselves off the hook, we will never be able to get through to the next November. From reading a lot of threads on this forum, we are the "adoption family from hell." I know that I am a pretty good judge 2d92ce491b
