The Centre for Human Rights and Development (CHRD) has charged Myanmar, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Afghanistan and Turkey with violations of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, a day after the UN Human Rights Council gave a standing ovation to Myanmar for steps it had taken to address the persecution of Rohingya Muslims. "The Myanmar government informed the CHRD that the government of Myanmar had rejected the allegations against Myanmar made in the current OHCHR

Resolution,” a CHRD statement said on Tuesday. “The statements made by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Myanmar made a clear reference to each of the allegations of the OHCHR Resolution.” Myanmar has also demanded that the CHRD provide “evidence” of its allegations. “The government of Myanmar requests that the present letter be used as formal notice of my rejection of the allegations made by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights,” the statement said. “In relation to the charges of other States parties, the government of Myanmar recognizes the rights of States party to freedom of religion, of the freedom of expression, and of the freedom of association.” The OHCHR was not immediately available for comment. As of last month, some 710,000 Rohingya Muslims remained in detention camps in Myanmar’s northwestern state of Rakhine, including some 200,000 who have fled to neighboring Bangladesh, according to the United Nations. About 40,000 others are in detention camps in Bangladesh. Numerous UN officials and rights groups have said Myanmar’s security forces have committed crimes against humanity and committed systematic or mass human rights violations and ethnic cleansing against the Rohingya. Rohingya Muslims are branded by Myanmar’s Buddhists as illegal immigrants and stateless people because they do not have citizenship.
