MicroRNAs in prostate cancer: targets and prognosis. Prostate cancer is the most common malignancy and the second leading cause of cancer-related deaths in males worldwide. Current treatment for prostate cancer include radical prostatectomy, radiation therapy and chemotherapy. However, the disease is often resistant to therapy and has a high rate of metastasis. Although a number of molecular mechanisms and potential biomarkers have been studied to date, the efficacy of treatment still remains limited. Therefore, there is an urgent need for novel therapeutic targets and prognostic biomarkers that can be used in clinical settings. MicroRNAs (miRNAs) are small non-coding RNAs that regulate gene expression in mammals. Recent studies have indicated that miRNAs play critical roles in prostate cancer. In this review, we discuss the role of miRNAs in the development and progression of prostate cancer and miRNAs as potential biomarkers and therapeutic targets in prostate cancer. Q: remove RcppEigen package and related files after install Rcpp package I have installed Rcpp from source code with Rcpp_0.12.0.tar.gz, downloaded from Github. However, when I installed it, it also installed a RcppEigen package that was not the one I had previously installed. I had also downloaded and installed a 2.15 version of RcppEigen from Rforge before the 1.1.2 version that was preinstalled with Rcpp was uploaded. How do I remove or uninstall this package that was installed with the Rcpp package? Also, does this package conflict with the preinstalled package and if so, how do I uninstall the preinstalled version of RcppEigen that was installed with R? Thank you. A: It looks like the RcppEigen package was installed using the install.packages command. If you take a look at the help page for that command, it gives you the following line of information on using it
