Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an image pickup apparatus that can determine a short-circuit failure within a chip of a solid state image pickup device, the solid state image pickup device including a photoelectric conversion unit consisting of a plurality of pixel-arranged photodiodes. 2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, with a higher resolution of an image pickup apparatus such as a digital still camera and a digital video camera, a diameter of pixels has become smaller. Thus, a focal plane of an image pickup lens comes close to a semiconductor substrate on which pixels are arranged. As a result, an image pickup apparatus is required to reduce the influence of crosstalk between pixels due to the relative positional relationship between the image pickup lens and the pixels in the image pickup lens. For example, JP-A-2006-319189 discloses an image pickup apparatus in which a dummy photoelectric conversion unit is arranged in the periphery of a photoelectric conversion unit that is provided in a pixel region (see FIG. 9). By performing a dark-reading operation on the dummy photoelectric conversion unit in parallel with the photoelectric conversion unit and determining an electric potential of the photoelectric conversion unit, an electric potential of a connection unit that connects the photoelectric conversion unit and a common signal line can be measured. As a result, a difference between an electric potential of the photoelectric conversion unit and an electric potential of the connection unit can be obtained. Thus, the influence of the crosstalk between pixels can be reduced. However, in the image pickup apparatus disclosed in JP-A-2006-319189, the photoelectric conversion unit may include a short circuit failure. In this case, it may be determined that there is a short circuit failure within the pixel of the photoelectric conversion unit, although there is no short circuit failure. For example, as shown in FIG. 10A, a plurality of dummy photoelectric conversion units DC

Perhaps you could start here: and search for his name. If he died when he was 55, the 1870 census in the Dallas County, TX site says he was 35, so this seems to be more likely: I have no idea if he is N.Marcus or H.Marcus or T.Marcus. I'm guessing it's N.Marcus, but these names look similar. The spelling 'Nathan' is usually a first name, but it looks like maybe he was named Nathan. My great grandfather was N.Marcus. I'm born in 1905, so when I was 18 I joined the U.S. Navy. I hope I can get to his service records and find out more about him.
